[00:11:33] So you say your major was... Psychology. Psychology, so did you come to choose that major? So first, like my freshman year of high school. Although its senior year, I bounced around a lot of like majors. At freshman year I was psychology. I wanted to do psychology. Sophomore year I think I was still psychology. And the junior I bounced around like three different things, criminal justice. I think I even wanted to do like law at some point. Right. I can't remember. I don't know what- forensic science, that was another one. And then senior year I came back to psychology.

[00:12:14] I chose psychology because it's what I want to do in the long term. Mm hmm. It's like it's related to therapy. It's, it's very much related to therapy, at least post-grad. And it's a very interesting field. And there is like a lot of research opportunities in it. But my main reason for choosing it was because it's what I do post-grad. I want to be a child psychologist. Okay.
